WOULD ARREST ALL ARMAMENT

Peace Conference Suggests Methods To Do Away with War Between Nations.

CARNEGIE'S SCHEME VERY CLEVER

He Would Have Powers Join Hands to Swoop Down on Any Other Powers Who Were Fighting with Each Other.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The most important subject thus far brought before the international peace congress was taken up Thursday, when the report of the committee on the universal reduction of armaments was made. The report evoked considerable discussion and an amendment was offered criticizing the United States. This amendment was tabled by a large majority as was also an amendment calling for "eventual abolition of armament."

The original resolution, which was adopted finally without a dissenting vote, follows:

"The congress thanks the President of the United States for his promise to take the first steps toward the convocation of a new international peace congress, to resume the deliberations commenced at The Hague in 1899. It expresses the opinion that the first task of each conference should be to elaborate and apply a definite plan of simultaneous arrest and subsequent reduction of armaments."

Criticizes United States.

Speaking to the amendment Dr. Darby deplored the policy of increased armament for this country, and hoped "that the party in America which had got the country into a declining plane will not be able to carry it further." The amendment criticizing the United States was introduced by Rev. Charles F. Dole of Boston.

In a letter to Rev. Edward Everett Hale, Cardinal Gibbons regrets his inability to be present at the conference, and declares he believes it his duty "to say a word in defense of Belgium's policy in the Congo Free State." He says:

"A discussion of the question would be one-sided and unfair, as the representatives of Belgium would have no opportunity to reply to the charges made against its administration. In the past charges were made from the outside against the Belgian administration of the Congo, but the Belgian

State has been very strict in its policies."

SISTERS OF CHARITY ARE ATTACKED BY MOB

Americans in Texas Towns Rescue New York Orphan Babies Placed With Mexican Families.

(Special by Scripps-McRae.)

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 7.—A mob at Clinton, Tex., threatened to tar and feather several Sisters of Charity and to lynch G. W. Swaine, agent of a New York foundling asylum—while they were attempting to rescue nineteen New York orphan babies from the homes of Mexican families where they had been placed a few days ago.

Twenty-one orphans arrived here from Morenci in care of the Sisters of Charity. There are nineteen at Clinton yet to be rescued. The orphans were placed in poor and unworthy Mexican families. The Americans grew indignant and Swaine took the twenty-one from Morenci.

At Clinton the Mexicans refused to give up the children, while the American population, 1,000 strong, surrounded the car with rifles and six shooters and threatened to lynch Swaine and tar and feather the nurses. The people had risen in their anger, and after taking the babies from the ignorant homes, made a new disposition for them and refused to let Swaine and his party have them.

JURY DECLARES GIRL WAS NOT ASSAULTED

Fred Harmening Tells of Finding His Sister in Barn With Ropes About Her Neck.

(Special by Berlin-McRae.)

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7.—Minnie Harmening, the 17-year-old girl whose body was found in her father's barn Wednesday afternoon, was not slain by a fiendish assailant, as at first believed, but committed suicide, according to the verdict of the coroner's jury.

In spite of the words of his children and the verdict of the jury, the father, Fred Harmening, declares that his daughter was murdered.

Fred Harmening, the 20-year-old brother of the young woman, told of finding the body of his sister suspended by a rope in the barn, and declared that he hid this knowledge from his parents out of respect for their feelings.

The two surviving sisters of the young woman, whose tragic death has started Palatine, corroborated the statements of their brother.

From the condition of the clothing, which was torn in places, and from marks and bruises on the body, the theory that the girl was attacked before her death was raised and the physician's examination of the body bore out the theory.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRE

The nineteenth annual convention of the Iowa Christian Endeavor Union will open at Shenandoah today. Charles Saunders and Mrs. Ella Hammond of Newark, Del., were instantly killed at Elton, Md., by a fast train.

A contract has been let for the erection of a new wireless telegraph station near Port Morien, Cape Breton, Island.

The Phoenix line steamer British Princess, from Antwerp, brought 156 Percheron horses and 2,000 birds of various kinds.

The annual meeting of the League of Iowa Municipalities will be held at Cedar Rapids next Tuesday and Wednesday.

Jack Ellis and Walter Reily, living near Holdenville, I. O., were shot and killed at their homes by Billy Fixcat, a full-blooded Indian.

It has been decided to hold the annual convention of the Mississippi River Improvement Association in Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 15-22.

By the accidental discharge of a gun carried by W. E. Bany of Chicago Raymond Nold, near Joslyn, Ill., was killed, his head being almost blown off.

PLANNING FOR LARGE MEETING

Speech of Senator Spooner Saturday Night, Promises to Arouse Much Interest.

THOUSANDS WILL HEAR HIM TALK

The Senior Wisconsin Senator is To Discuss National Issues—May Touch on the Present State Situation.

Saturday evening United States was the first paper in the state to do so. It launched his campaign and Senator Spooner was elected senator. Senator Spooner comes Saturday night to address the republicans of Wisconsin. He will be received in open arms by his friends and fellow patriots. Senator Spooner is a magnetic speaker. He is a dignified speaker. In the United States senator he speaks in tomorrow night. Five thousand people crowded the house from pit to ceiling and the state of Wisconsin was one of the few republican states to remain republican in the great Cleveland landslide. Colonel Spooner's ability was recognized. His friends in Rock county appreciated his worth and despite the fact the candidates for the assembly and state senate were instructed for another man for United States senator they devoted their energies in the future to promote the campaign of the Hudson lawyer. The Gazette at that time came out strongly for Mr. Spooner for senator and all should be present to hear him.

STUDENTS ENJOYED GOOD TIME IN THE CLASS FIGHT

Madison, Wis., Oct. 7.—Six hundred students were ducked by a crew of leading sophomores who derided the freshmen for not coming out to capture the raft and flag. A fleet of a dozen university rowboats was secured and manned by freshmen. The boat were held together by a wire cable. The raft was surrounded and was being towed to the shore where the superior numbers of the freshmen would soon bring victory. But a sophomore on the raft had an ax and the cable was chopped asunder, spoiling the plan of capture. Then a combined assault was made and after a fierce combat in which both boats were freely used by the sophomores, as gently as it is possible under the circumstances, the flag was lowered from the pole, the crew of the freshman was captured and the two boats were recaptured in the confusion by the sophomores and hurried into a boat. Then the trophy craft was rowed far out into the lake toward the state insane asylum on the other side. The escape was made before the freshmen discovered what had become of the flag and pursued the trophy craft.

And so 5,000 faculty members, upperclassmen and citizens thronged the shores and cheered while scores of underclassmen, furiously contesting, surged down the rocky shore between Dean Brige's house and the gymnasium into the water. From half-past four until after eight in the evening the battle raged and ended with the sophomores dividing among themselves the shreds of their great red class flag which had been the subject of the most strenuous and dangerous class fight ever held here. At first the rush consisted merely in dragging opposing classes to the shore and sousing them, or heaving them off the end of the boathouse pier as has been done annually for a score of years; but the center of the fight soon became a great raft out in deep water, which had been placed there by the sophomores with a large red flag with "1907" on it. The raft was manned and a yelling scene on the floating fortress, burned a little red fire and divided the banner among them, the bits to be sacredly treasured.

G. G. Wilder of Chicago, candidate for guard on the freshman football team, was one of the heroes of his class, acting as a leader and overruling the superior organization of the sophomores. The authorities regret the extremely dangerous feature of the raft and the fighting in deep water, and this will perhaps not be allowed to occur as a part of subsequent annual rushes.

SEPTEMBER WAS PLEASANT MONTH

THE AVERAGE TEMPERATURE IN JANESEVILLE 64 DEGREES.

THE CROPS ARE FAR BEHIND

Not Enough Hot Sunshine for Corn—
Too Much Rain for Sugar Beets.

Though September has been a cool month, it can scarcely be classed as a cold one for only once has the temperature fallen below 40 degrees and then just to 39. The average maximum temperature has been 71 and the average minimum 57, making an average of 64. This is a drop of six degrees from the average of August, which was 70. Though we have had a few warm days of Indian summer several have been rather cold. Wednesday the 21st, was the coldest, the thermometer at Helmstreet's drug store standing 56 high and 40 low. Rains have been frequent but the majority of the storms have occurred at night and twelve days are recorded as pleasant while only eleven are classed as cloudy, drizzly, foggy or sultry.

Crop Conditions.

The corn did not improve much from its condition at the end of August and large quantities were cut when it was still soft. The numerous rains have not been the best of things for the sugar beets which would have been better had there been more hot sunshine to develop the sugar qualities in the roots. The tobacco is all in the sheds and the warm, muggy weather of the latter days of the month made many fear that the crop would be greatly damaged by being burnt at no large losses from this source have been reported.

Weather Table.

The following table gives the maximum and minimum temperatures for each day and the condition of the weather:

	Max. Min.
September 1, heavy fog	82 62
September 2, cloudy	74 67
September 3,	79 62
September 4, pleasant	74 52
September 5, fair	78 66
September 6, pleasant	78 60
September 7, cloudy	68 60
September 8, sunshine	74 64
September 9, pleasant	78 55
September 10,	85 61
September 11, cloudy	81 67
September 12, cold	68 43
September 13, drizzly	59 50
September 14, cloudy	58 42
September 15, pleasant	67 40
September 16, pleasant	70 48
September 17, pleasant	82 47
September 18, cloudy	76 60
September 19, sunshine	76 67
September 20, cloudy	60 50
September 21,	66 40
September 22, pleasant	60 35
September 23, pleasant	76 55
September 24, pleasant	76 69
September 25, cloudy	70 53
September 26, pleasant	72 55
September 27, pleasant	72 50
September 28, sunny	84 60
September 29, pleasant	79 53
September 30, cloudy	68 50

Colder Weather Follows.

The third storm period is reactionary and central on the 16th, 17th and 18th. The Vulcan reactionary and the opposition of the planet Jupiter are the disturbing factors at this time. The opposition of Jupiter falls on the 18th and it should be noted that in connection with the second storm period, as the influence of Jupiter's opposition will be felt for ten to fifteen days before and after the day of opposition. On the 18th at six o'clock p.m., the earth will sail directly between the sun and the greatest of all planets—Jupiter. Passing through the path of Solar energy as it does at this point it may be expected that unusual atmospheric instability, with magnetic and electrical perturbations will prevail. Rapid rising and falling of barometer will cause corresponding storminess and changes of temperature. Seismic shakings will be natural at this end and other periods in this part of the month. Decided change to the cooler, with frosty nights to the northward, will follow these disturbances.

End of Cold Period.

From the 20th to the 25th and central on the 22d is the regular fourth storm period of October. The disturbing factors at this time are the Vulcan equinox, the Mercury disturbance, the opposition of Jupiter with Moon on the celestial equator and full. It is probable that some of the most marked disturbances of the month will occur at this time. Low barometer and rapid change to the warmer may be expected in all western sections as early as the 21st, with probable thunder storms to follow, and during the 22d, 23d and 24th a series of storms will pass over the country from west to east. These disturbances will culminate on and touching the 25th, with high barometer, gales from the west and north and change to much colder. If the barometer falls unusually low dangerous gales will sweep the lakes and the Atlantic coast with storms of rain, wind and snow in the interior. Mercury will begin his work of "thick cloudiness, wind and sleet" northward at this time. Earthquake disturbances will be felt in many parts of the globe not far from the 24th. These general perturbations will wind up the October cold wave, bringing heavy frosts to most parts of the country for several nights following the storm.

Last Storm Period.

Central on the 27th and 28th is the fifth and last storm period. Mercury and Vulcan, with moon at greatest declination to the north, are the disturbing causes at this time. The perturbations will be more decided than they normally would be because of the pressure on the Mercury disturbances. Some energetic storms especially on and about the lakes and the north Atlantic will appear at this time. Rain will turn to sleet and snow northward, although the moon at the extreme position north will tend to prevent or delay heavy mercury and severe boreal weather. Mr. Hicks in his general forecast says the heaviest and most general disturbances will not compare in severity with the storms of October, 1903. Upon the whole the month will prove more than usually pleasant but the storm periods will pass with their usual regularity.

NEW SCHEME FOR GOOD GOVERNMENT

President Van Hise Has Made elaborate Plans for Student Government.

Madison, Wis.—President C. R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, has inaugurated a unique system to keep in touch with the student body and to maintain a bond of sympathy and mutual understanding between the students and the faculty. He is organizing what will be known as the president's student council, composed of a representative of each of the Greek letter fraternities, the literary societies, athletic association and other student organizations, consisting in all of some forty members, presumably leaders of student opinion. The first meeting with the president was held yesterday and Dr. Van Hise explained his purpose to be the establishment of intimate and cordial relations between the governing body of the university and the 3,300 students. He said the university community had become so large that the students often drifted from terms of confidence with the faculty and there was need of a connecting link. When he or the faculty determines upon some plan affecting the students, he said, it would be explained to the council and subsequently the opinion of the council will be received to ascertain how the proposed change is taken by the student body. When any difficulty or disagreement arises by reason of a misunderstanding the matter can be adjusted through the council and when the students desire to make representations to the faculty or president they can do it through the council. Last June at the time of the semi-centennial jubilee celebration the students were incensed because the final examinations were not suspended and the faculty found difficulty in making itself understood by the students. This is one of the reasons for the establishment of the new council.

Bride-To-Be Lives in Dane County, and License Could Not Be Granted Here.

Harley R. Fish of this city and Miss Caroline Jacobson of Stoughton have secured a marriage license from the clerk of Dane county, in Madison. Mr. Fish had to go to the Capital city to secure his license to wed because his bride lives in Stoughton which is in Dane county and the Wisconsin law provides that the license must be taken out in the county in which the bride resides. Mr. Fish is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fish who reside on Chatham street and is a telegraph operator.

EXPECT BIG CROWD AT MYERS TONIGHT

Wrestling Match Between Jim Parr and Reinhold Schott Interests Sporting Fraternity.

There will undoubtedly be a large audience present this evening to witness the wrestling match between Jim Parr, champion of England, and Reinhold Schott of Watertown. Parr agrees to throw Schott three times in ninety minutes of actual wrestling time for the gate receipts and it is the general opinion that he has undertaken a contract that will not be altogether too easy to fulfill. He also offers to give $25 to any local man whom he cannot throw in nine minutes. The sporting fraternity may make an effort to prevent this offer from going by default. Parr has been in this country for the past four years and has defeated every comer except Jenkins who won the decision over him in a questionable manner. An exhibition in Kimball's furniture store is the gold and silver belt he won in a wrestling tournament at London, in 1902, when he defeated sixteen of the best in the United Kingdom. He weighs about 173 pounds but offers to meet any man weighing 180, laying claim to the light-heavy-weight championship of the world. At Rockford Tuesday night he easily defeated Emil Klank, two falls out of three in fast time.

BEAUTIFUL SCENE AT MILITARY BALL

Stars and Stripes and Stacked Rifles Figured Conspicuously in Decorations—First Annual a Success.

Assembly hall was in gala dress last evening for the first annual military ball given under the auspices of the Bower City Killers. The stars and stripes were everywhere conspicuously displayed and other decorations in harmony with the bright colors as well as the stacked rifles on the orchestra stand contributed to make the scene a striking and alluring one. Seventy-five couples danced to the music of Smith & Koen's orchestra. In charge of the arrangements were B. C. Gardner, Charles Mead, George J. Petrie, Warren Crossman, and H. C. Kent. The floor committee consisted of Robert Ashton, James Holm, Harry Jackie, William Day, George Crossman, and E. G. Strobel.

On the roster of the new organization there are now forty-eight members and as soon as the number reaches fifty Capt. F. B. Tuttle will appeal to the governor of the state for an equipment. Drills are to be held every Tuesday evening during the winter at the rink and it is the plan to give a series of dancing par-

WANDERERS TELL OF MORE SIGHTS

QUEEN VICTORIA'S WONDERFUL JUBILEE PRESENTS DISCUSSED.

TEA IN A JAPANESE TEA HOUSE

Japan's Exhibit Is Very Extensive—Much of Interest To Be Seen There.

St. Louis, Oct. 4.—"The poor, dear old queen! Five million dollars' worth of presents and not a thing she could use. Not even a sofa pillow to lay her head on; not even a pair of comfortable carpet-slippers for her tired feet."

This was Jane's comment after looking over Queen Victoria's Jubilee presents which are displayed in 25 large glass cases on the upper floor of the Hall of Congress. She doubtless expected to see an array of sugar spoons, salad forks, clocks, card-trays, linen napkins and other useful things such as are commonly bestowed upon the brides of our town. John thought they "might have given her a manicure set or autograph just to make her think of old times."

But here are over four hundred presents, mostly from the queen's subjects in her colonies and not one of them of any use except a sumptuous carved ivory chair the gift of the Maharajah of Travancore. This chair is valued at $250,000 and yet I doubt if the queen ever sat in it. The other presents consist largely of silver and sandal-wood caskets, richly carved and many of them inlaid with ivory. Many of them are cylindrical in shape, doubtless containing scrolls of parchment upon which the queen's subjects wrote their felicitations and good wishes. A particularly costly and beautiful casket came from the Sardar Edali Khurshedji Moti and the Parsi Community of Surat. One naturally wonders why the Sardar and the Parsi Community didn't send an automobile coat or a necklace of pearls or something real swell."

There are caskets galore from Allahabad, the ewan of Patanipur Assam, the Maharaja of Orcha, the Rajah of Bobilli in Vizagapatam, Madras, and a whole lot of Indian Rajas and princes. There are also royal saddles and elephant tusks.

The Indian Rajas and Princes meant well but some one should have passed the word around not to make any more caskets or music cases.

The two swarthy British officers who are guarding these presents are the biggest men I have seen at the exposition. The Patagonian giants are small beside them. I asked one of them what the jubilee presents were valued at. He said that no one had undertaken to estimate their value and that they were not insured.

I also learned that the presents shown are only a tenth part of what the queen received and that their value had been estimated by American silversmiths at five million dollars.

John's step was elastic and his face lit up with pleasant expectancy as we climbed the hill to the Japanese pavilions and pagodas. John swears by the little Japs.

He wants to see everything he does and everything he makes and I must admit that these little "Yankees of the East" are by far the most interesting people at the exposition.

It is hard to think of them shelling

...Forty years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, Oct. 7, 1864.—Common Council.—At a regular meeting of the common council last evening, His Honor, the Mayor, was in the chair and all aldermen were present except Graham. A petition was presented from a number of citizens requesting that such portions of West Milwaukee St. as have not yet been paved, macadamized or curbed be so improved at the expense of the property owners before whose premises the work is being done. In view of such petition Ald. Jackson introduced an order to the effect that the city surveyor be instructed to prepare and file in the office of the city clerk, a plain and accurate specification of the curbing, paving and macadamizing of that portion of West Milwaukee street contemplated in the petition. By an order the judgment recovered by F. M. Hibbard and W. H. Douglas, for the delivery of orders, was referred to the city attorney for his opinion as to the liability of the city in the business.

Heavy Decline.—Gold has declined from 284 to 183. Sugar has declined one cent and print paper has gone up one cent. At this rate, if gold comes down to par, sugar will be "only" thirty cents per pound and paper twenty-eight cents per pound. Encouraging to the consumers of groceries, and publishers.

Notice.—The following named gentlemen, members of the executive committee for the campaign, are requested to meet at the office of Isaac Rogers on Monday next, at 10 o'clock a. m.: G. S. Staasberger, S. L. James, Isaac Rogers, Willard Merrill, J. M. Burgess, chairman.

Hon. Wm. K. Wilson has been nominated by the democrats of Milwaukee for the senate in the fifth district.

PRISONERS IN A BOLD ESCAPE

Five Get Away From South Dakota Penitentiary After a Battle.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 7.—One of the most sensational and wholesale escapes in the history of the Sioux Falls penitentiary occurred Thursday, when seven desperate prisoners made a break for liberty. The escape was made from a new building in the course of construction at the penitentiary. The alarm was promptly given and every available guard and attendant of the prison was speedily in pursuit. After an exciting chase two of the fugitives, James Andrews and Thomas Burns, both under sentences of twelve years for highway robbery, were recaptured. Two of the remaining five were wounded by the fusillade of shots which were fired after the escaping prisoners. The two wounded men dropped to the ground and for a brief time it was thought they had been killed, but they managed to gain their feet and escape.

JAPANESE RELIEF FUNDS SAFE

Counts Matsukata and Inouye Absolved in Public Statement.

Tokyo, Oct. 7.—The former president of the Yamato bank has issued a statement concerning the funds of the Imperial Relief society in refutation of fraud charges. The aspersions were directed against Counts Matsukata and Inouye, the promoters of the society. The statement shows that $400,000 was collected and safely deposited in banks and that the banks were required to furnish security covering the funds. The delay in distributing the funds is due to the fact that the government and local societies are successfully caring for the destitute. The relief funds are earning interest and pay the management's expenses.

FIGHTS THE MILLERS' COMBINE

Attorney General of Kansas Will Prosecute Trade Organization.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 7.—Attorney General Coleman announces that he will bring legal proceedings against the millers of Kansas for maintaining an alleged organization for the control of the prices of flour. Mr. Coleman has a case pending in the United States supreme court against the Kansas Grain Dealers' association, which is similar in plan to the organization of the millers. The suit was brought under the Farrelly anti-trust law, passed by the last legislature. If the court declares the law to be constitutional, action against the millers will be commenced at once.

FASTER TIME TO ST. LOUIS

The Wabash Cuts the Schedule to 7 Hours.

Commencing Sunday, October 20, the Wabash Banner Blue Limited, which leaves Chicago at 11:03 a. m. daily, will make the run from Chicago to St. Louis in "seven" hours—one hour faster than has heretofore ever been made between Chicago and St. Louis. On the return trip, this train leaves St. Louis at 2:00 p. m. and reaches Chicago at 9:00 p. m.

The Banner Blue Limited is the finest day train in the world. The equipment, which is all new, consists of high-back coaches, free reclining chair cars, dining car and parlor-observation car.

THE TWO TICKETS

The Gazette will carry at the head of its editorial columns from now until election all the two republican state tickets. The ticket headed by Governor La Follette has been declared regular on a technicality by the supreme court and will be placed on the ballot as the republican ticket. This, of course, means that the legislature and county candidates will appear on the same ticket, the same as they appear in above list.

The republican state ticket nominated at the opera-house convention May 19, and endorsed by the national republican convention, will appear on the ballot as the "National Republican ticket," and the supreme court will be asked for the right to print on this ticket the names of the same republican electors as appear on the other ticket, so that every republican in the state can vote for the national ticket.

The Gazette has endeavored to consistently support the National republican State ticket since the day when it was placed in the field and the paper will continue to support this ticket until the 8th of November. It remains for the individual voter to determine which ticket he will vote, and there is certainly no excuse for a republican voting the democratic ticket.

While the factional strife is the most deplorable experience that ever came to the party, it is idle to imagine that the action of the court has in any way narrowed the breach. The same causes for disagreement exist and the feeling of bitterness is simply intensified.

The republican press of the state is in position to appreciate party estrangement, more acutely than the individual, but if the press would respect itself and be respected, it must be consistent. The action of the court has in no way changed conditions. Calling black white does not change the color. The verdict of the party is the last tribunal and the contest can only be settled by the ballot box.

CREATED WEALTH.

A dollar taken from a mine is a dollar added to the wealth of our country. Money spent in mining gold still remains in circulation but the gold itself is an addition to our store of wealth."

One does not expect to find in the literature of mining companies, in their initial stages, at least, the precision of definition that is desirable, but the frequency with which the above statement has appeared in late calls for at least a brief analysis of its claim, says the Wall Street Journal.

We don't mine dollars, we mine gold. Gold is an addition to the wealth of the country provided it does not cost more to mine it than it is worth. The process of mining has cheapened greatly, in recent years which is one cause of the increase in production. There is a profit now in extracting the gold from large ore. But so many mining enterprises are failures that a San Francisco banker said to The Wall Street Journal some time ago, that it cost $20 to get $1 of gold out of the ground. In reply to this United States Treasurer Roberts said to the recent bankers' convention:

A leading financial journal of this city quotes the president of one of the largest banks in San Francisco as alleging that it costs $20 to get a dollar of gold out of the ground. But was the metal all that the picks of the miners and their self-sacrifice took out of the earth? Did not the arguments of 1849 and their successors create the California of today?

The ranches, the orchards, the wheat and the fruit, the factories and shipyards, the cities, the churches, the universities, the civilization of that prosperous commonwealth are a part of the harvest planted by that $20 of the miners."

In other words gold mining may indirectly add to the wealth of the country even though directly it may be a loss.

But a dollar of gold taken from the ground is not a dollar added to our wealth. The aggregate wealth of the nation is the sum total of the wealth of the individual composing it. A loss to the individual such as is involved in the production of a useless article or in the mining of gold at a greater cost than the value of gold produced is a net loss to the individual and thus to the nation as well.

If in mining $100,000 worth of gold, $100,000 worth of property were destroyed, it could not be said that there had been any addition to wealth. Or if in mining $100,000 of gold, $150,000 of labor is expended, the result is a loss to wealth, even though $100,000 were thereby added to the money in circulation. There is still a great deal of confusion of ideas concerning what constitutes wealth and what is the nature and office of money, and many of us are still more or less under the dominion of seventeenth century economics which regarded it as a loss of wealth even to export gold in exchange for products.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN PARTY.

A new party has been born. The National Republican party of Wisconsin now makes its bow to the public. Composed of the rank and file of the conservative element of the republican party who oppose the regime of the La Follette element, the new party enters the lists of competitors at the coming election. In the necessity of the hour, the name National Republican party means much. It means that the men whose names are found in its columns are men who have been endorsed by the National Republican party in convention assembled. Under the leadership of such men as John C. Spooner, Joseph V. Quarles, Emil Ahrens, Samuel Cook, William G. Upham, Charles Pfister, Malcomb Jeffris, J. C. Babcock and others of this calibre the party will be strong throughout the state. Hall to the National Republican Party of Wisconsin.

SCOFIELD NAMED.

The withdrawal of Samuel Cook from the head of the regular republican ticket and the placing of the name of such a well known and undoubted republican as Edward S. Scofield at the head of the new ticket and new party the National Republican Party means that fight for the rule of the people against the dictatorship of one man is to continue. Governor Scofield has served the state honestly and well for two terms as governor and his character is above reproach. Twice he has defeated the present governor for nomination in bitter fights and is now again in the thick of it fighting for the principles which were endorsed by the national republican party at their convention in Chicago and endorsed by the two United States senators and numerous members of congress from this state.

Eddie Fay bobbed up again, this time in Chicago and those fly Chicago coppers did not catch him any easier than did Sheriff Appleby after he got away here.

The Governor's automobile will not be idle many more days if it strikes roads it can run over.

The National Republican party designates the principles we stand for.

Scofield is to meet his old opponent Bob, once more and face to face.

Do you suppose La Follette will dare mention that famous cow again?

Jeffris calls a spade a spade. No mining matters from now on.

Everything is square and above board now. National Republicans and the faction.

A minority can rule a majority and the law can not stop such rule.

They say the eyes of justice are blindfolded. Well, it looks that way.

It's Spooner had made his speech six months ago—but he didn't.

PRESS COMMENT

Milwaukee Sentinel: Probably Gov. La Follette loves Isaac Stephenson for the money he has spent in politics.

Madison Journal: Possibly Lincoln Steffens found a stoolie when hunting political mushrooms in this fair commonwealth of ours.

La Crosse Leader-Press: At La Crosse a preacher has been sent to jail and at Chippewa Falls another is to be sent to the legislature, but according to Mr. La Follette both of these public institutions contain about the same sort of people.

Wausau Central, Wisconsin: The aspect of a man standing before an audience in the state of Wisconsin and telling his hearers that they have got to elect him governor, or he will force himself upon them at a future date, is indeed, a laughable incident.

Appleton Post: Moreover we are unable to see why Isaac Stephenson should not be proceeded against by executive authority, state or local. On the strength of his own confession exclusively, he is guilty of an offense punishable under the law by heavy fine and imprisonment.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The inability of the supreme court to interfere and protect the republicans of this state in their right to govern their own party by emancipating themselves from arbitrary and unwarranted control by a self-perpetuating committee makes it obligatory on republicans to appeal to the ballot box for relief. Fortunately that avenue always is open.

Superior Telegram: Cheer up boys; we're going to have a tariff on dried blood, shark skins and dragon's teeth. At least the democratic speaker at the curling rink last night found fault because the republicans have fixed no tariff on those commodities. The presumption is that the democrats will correct the error as soon as they get a chance to.

AN ILLUMINATING TALK ON SEWERS

THE CITY ENGINEER WEIGHS BIG-LITTLE PIPE THEORY

THAT HAS WORRIED CITIZENS

Contractor Benson Gets a Billet-Dou From City, Ordering Section of Main St. Pipe Replaced.

Janesville's street assessment committee, acting as a board of public works, this morning issued the following notice to be served upon Contractor M. J. Benson or his lawful agent: "I will take notice that the following work is not done in accordance with your contract. The northerly end of the sewer now being laid on South Main street is out of alignment. The defect must be corrected before you can proceed. Upon failure to remedy within twenty-four hours after the service of this notice the undersigned will cause such portion to be rebuilt or repaired at your expense. You will further take notice that you are and will be required to proceed with reasonable dispatch with the sewer work on South Main street, and that in event of your failure to complete the work there already started and continue the work with reasonable dispatch, the undersigned will have the work done at your expense." The signatures of the committee follow.

Foreman Was Obstinate

The foreman refused to remedy the defect when attention was called to it by the city engineer yesterday, although the correction would only have required the re-laying of a few sections of pipe that had not been covered up. Having announced his refusal he ceased work in that portion of the city. Contractor Benson has given various reasons for his failure to proceed faster with the work, maintaining that both the railroads and the sewer-pipe manufacturers have been at fault.

Kerch on the Sewers

City Engineer C. V. Kerch was interviewed this morning regarding certain criticisms which have been passed on various aspects of the sewer system now being constructed in the city. In the light of what Mr. Kerch has to say it would appear that the pipes are being laid in accordance with accepted engineering principles and tenets and the best knowledge of people hereabouts who have made a study of this kind of work. All the plans, specifications, maps, grades, and drawings were carefully gone over by Edward Rugar and in a lengthy report to the council he recommended that the sanitary sewers be constructed according to Mr. Kerch, "deeming them well planned and satisfactory and being convinced that they answered all requirements."

Sanitary Sewer Only

In the first place, Engineer Kerch would answer his critics, "the system is for sanitary purposes only," the idea being that all of this form of sewage shall eventually be discharged below the city. To carry storm water that distance for disposal would make the cost of the system prohibitive. Especially is this true inasmuch as the storm water can be disposed of quite economically by allowing it to discharge directly into the river. The main sanitary sewers are to be laid largely on streets running north and south, while the shortest course for the storm water is east and west, direct to the river.

Facts and Figures

Now, in a sanitary system all the material disposed of is pumped into the pipes by the city water—that is, relatively speaking, all of it. There may be some rain water but it is a negligible quantity. This makes it possible to arrive at almost exact figures in planning for a system of pipe of sufficiently capacity to carry it away. The pumping capacity of the city water works is eighty gallons a day per capita. In order to be generous in the estimate this amount was more than doubled in estimating the maximum flow of sewage. And one family of five persons, for the sake of safety, was assigned to each 33-foot lot along the line of the sewer. Then, as a further precaution, the size and carrying capacity of the pipes were so estimated that were each of the five members of each family on every 33 foot lot turning 178 gallons of water into the pipes each day, they would only have a flow of from one-half to two-thirds capacity.

The Grade As a Factor

The carrying capacity of a sewer pipe does not depend entirely on its size. The fall or grade is most important factor. Hence it comes about that in some places a large pipe will be found emptying into one of smaller size. An eight-inch sewer on Prospect avenue will receive the contents of a ten-inch pipe. But the ten-inch sewer is almost on the dead level while the eight-inch pipe descends the hill. Now it is a foregone conclusion that the sewers on the upper branches will have insufficient flow to keep them clear and it has been necessary to provide flushing devices to keep them clean. A practical demonstration of this may be observed at the outlet on the westerly end of the Court street bridge of the private sewer that runs from the North-Western depot and has among its tributaries, the high school and the Y. M. C. A. building. Despite its large territory the pipe discharges but a tiny stream, less than one-tenth of the capacity of the pipe.

About the Water Pipes

The water supply bears a direct relation to the probable volume of sewage and it is interesting in this connection to know that the entire east side of the river is supplied by one twelve-inch and one eight-inch water main. The main street sewer is a 27-inch pipe, and eight-inch piping is the smallest used anywhere. Were it not for the difficulty in keeping them clear, four-inch pipe would be adequate in all places where eight-inch are being used. The household receives his city water from a three-quarters inch water pipe and the waste water is carried away in a six-inch sewer pipe. Of course, if a storm and service water service in addition to the sanitary were to be provided, the smallest sewer pipe would have to be 12 inches in diameter.

Difference in Cost

Larger sewer pipe does cost more than the smaller sizes, and much more. The contractor is laying the Main street 27-inch variety for $2.50 a foot, while he charges for the eight-inch pipe only fifty-five cents a foot, and it would be a waste of money to put in larger pipes than are required for the service.

Edward Rugar's Approval

At the request of City Engineer Kerch the city secured the services of a consulting engineer and because of the confidence of the city generally in Edward Rugar, he was prevailed upon to go over all the plans in detail. Among other statements made by Capt. Rugar in his report is the following: "I have examined the locations, diameters and grades of the different sewers and have calculated their flows at many points along their course and have found that they meet all present and probable future requirements."

JAP PLUMAGE HUNTERS NABBED.

The United States revenue cutter "Thetis" put in at Honolulu awhile ago with seventy-seven prisoners, all Japanese plumage hunters who had been captured on an American island while engaged in their illegal operations. These men were sent out as hunters by a Tokio firm, and their destination was Lihiansky Island, known in many regions as a wonderful nesting place for plumage birds. This island is in mid-Pacific, not far from Midway Island. The fact that it belonged to the United States did not seem to deter these Oriental plumage hunters. They had, besides the hunters, a corps of skinners and taxidermists. They went to work last January and collected a great many thousands of skins. Late in the same month an ocean gale destroyed their schooner, and left the rest marooned upon the island. A second Japanese vessel brought about forty more hunters, who were left to join the others, the ship leaving word that she would presently return. She did not return. Meanwhile the war with Russia broke out, of which the plumage hunters heard nothing at all. Perhaps they were forgotten. In any case they were very hungry when finally discovered by the United States revenue steamer, rescued and imprisoned. Captain Hamlet of the "Thetis" says they had wrought an appalling destruction. There were three hundred and thirty-five cases of plumage collected, and in all likelihood more than three thousand thousand plumage birds had been destroyed. It would seem that the records of the Orient rival those of Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana and other parts of the United States, where the very name of thoughtless destruction would seem to have been reached. MANAGER MYERS BUYS A CURTAIN

Closes a Contract for an Asbestos Drop Curtain for the Theatre.

Manager Myers this morning closed a contract with the Keasby and Mattison company, manufacturers of asbestos theatre curtains, for a curtain for the opera-house, Jos. H. Hirz, the western representative of the company, took the measurements of the curtain desired, and will forward the order at once. It is expected that the curtain will be placed in the opera-house some time about Thanksgiving day. It will be pure white with the word "Asbestos" across the face of it. Next season after it has become thoroughly dried it will be painted with some fire-proof paint. Mr. Myers also is making other changes at the opera-house. The Janesville Electric company is today stringing new wires which will connect with the box office directly and will control red lights all over the building which will designate the exits from the theatre. Mr. Myers also will have masons at work in a day or two building a solid brick wall under the stage with an iron door which will entirely shut off all contact between the stage and the front of the house. These improvements with the new fire-escapes which have been ordered will make the theatre as safe as any house in the northwest. The curtain ordered is of the same pattern as those used in the Fuller opera-house, Madison; in Trenton, N. J., Kansas City; Cleveland; Baltimore; Toledo; Akron; Milwaukee; Minneapolis; Rockford; Montreal; Salt Lake City; and other large cities. It will extend one and a half feet past the brick partition and is of almost pure asbestos. The cloth used in its construction is of a material specially woven.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is that derives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a cancer fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of medicinal rewards for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide effectively destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

MARSHALL ISLANDS CHIEF DIES

His Subjects Indicate Their Grief in a Weird Manner.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 7.—The schooner Neptune has arrived from the Marshall Islands, in mid-Pacific, and brings news of the death of Murriel, grand chief of a district comprising most of the islands of the group. The old ruler was 80 years of age when he died, some weeks ago, after a lingering illness, and his death and the subsequent obsequies were the occasion of a great display on the part of the natives. For weeks prior to the death of Murriel the natives had assembled at his island home. When he died, all the Marshall Islanders went into mourning and for several days gave vent to their grief in a weird manner.

Another Sufferer in Janesville testifies to his cure of skin disease by D. D. Prescription.

Read what your fellow townsmen say:

Recommends D. D. D. to Friends

I wish to testify to you my appreciation of the D. D. D. Remedy for Eczema. Four years ago I took my daughter, whose face had been badly broken out for a long time to Chicago, and consulted there one of the highest authorities on diseases of the blood in regard to her case, after a thorough examination he prescribed for her, she took his medicine and followed his directions faithfully for over three years with no improvement that we could see whatever; last fall I saw a display of the D. D. D. remedy in Chicago and bought a bottle to try, with that one bottle her face was wholly cleaned up and has remained so now for twelve months and it seems to be permanent, I have recommended it to other cases with like results and take pleasure in testifying to its virtues whenever I find any whom I think it will benefit. As ever I remain,

PARKER WON'T GO TO THE FAIR!

Esopus, N. Y., Sept. 2, 1904.—It is now announced that Mr. Parker has changed his mind, in regard to his trip to the fair at St. Louis, and is still probable he will not leave Rosemont again during the campaign.—Press Dispatch.

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Parker won't go to the fair!

He promised to travel across the wide prairies.

He promised to let loose some old-time vagaries.

He wanted to ride on the Pike droverades.

But now he won't go to the fair!

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Parker won't go to the fair!

He said that forsooth he would set forth and travel.

Would brave all the dangers of dust and gravel.

He said all the mysteries he would unravel.

But now he won't go to the fair!

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Parker won't go to the fair!

Why won't the big bosses let Parker go roaming?

And why do they keep him shut up in the gloaming?

St. Louis is waiting—her beer glasses foaming.

But Parker won't go to the fair!

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

On dear! What can the matter be?

Dear! Dear! What can the matter be?

Parker can't go to the fair!

SHOW THE TRUTH.

Republicans, forecasting events from the September elections in Vermont and Maine, should not allow themselves to be overconfident of results of the presidential election in November.

There is no doubt as to the fact that Roosevelt will win, but he ought to be given a great vote of confidence, an outpouring of national affection and trust, aside from a mere majority of electoral votes.

A rebuke is deserved for the men who so fulsomely and sentimentally distort, prevaricate and invent, as to make it appear that Theodore Roosevelt is anything but the strong, thoughtful, loyal American citizen that he is.

The silly bosh about "imperialism" and "militarism," the groundless sub-dub is to fancied personal dictation by their executive to the American people should be rebuked by the people in such manner as can never be forgotten.

Let Republicans appear en masse at the polls in November, to show what they think of Theodore Roosevelt.

A Rearguard Action.

Already, in the presidential campaign of this year the Democrats are fighting a "rearguard action." The Russian General Kropotkin has his troubles and has been fighting rearguard actions for some time, but his condition is good as compared with the condition of the present leaders of the Democratic party.

The Democracy is fighting a "rearguard action," and about the only trouble the Republicans have in the premises is that there will not be enough in the campaign. Even the "rearguard action" appears to be about over.

Take Your Choice.

David B. Hill, the sponsor of the Democratic candidate for the presidency, said at St. Louis that he "did not know how" Parker stood on the money question." For thirty years Hill and Parker have been intimately associated, socially and politically. If the statement made by Hill is to be believed, then Parker is too secretive a man to elect to the presidency; if false, then it was evidently made for the purpose of misleading the people; and if the people are to be deceived in one thing, why not in all the acts of the Democratic sis or the will and cannot move. That was why I stopped in the middle of the road. I should have been killed but for you."

"Perhaps I had better see you home, then," said Brendon.

"No, I shall take a cab. It is only now and then that the thing takes me. It can't be cured, and maybe it will get worse. At present it does not prevent me attending to my work. Come home with me, and I'll tell you more. I live in 43 Amelia square."

"What, in that house?" cried George, for this was the number of the Jersey mansion.

"Yes. What do you know of it?"

"Nothing."

"Oh, yes, you do, but you won't trust me. However, I'll see you again, and I'll trust you. Take care of Lola Velez. She means you harm."

The next moment he was gone, and George was staring after him.

CHAPTER VIII.

LOLO VELEZ was the rage for a season. She sprang into fame in a single night and thenceforth held an undisputed position as the favorite of the London public. She was not exceptionally handsome, nor was her dancing distinguished by any special grace, but about her there was something weird and original which appealed to her audience. George Brendon had been instrumental in introducing her to the public, and she owed her position as much to his kindness as to her own genius.

It was a snowy winter's night when Brendon found her. He had just entered Pembroke square, where he had lodgings, when he heard a moan. Turning aside into the shadow of a wall, he found a woman lying there exhausted with cold and hunger. Always anxious to do good, he brought the poor creature to his rooms. Under the influence of food and wine and warmth she revived sufficiently to tell her story.

"If you choose to tell me," said George artfully.

"There was a lease in the green box, and many bills," said Margery, "few photographs, and that was all. I couldn't see the story."

"What story, Miss Watson?"

Margery nodded with a cowering smile and answered in a whisper, as though her heart was still alive and within hearing. "She told me it was a story she was writing. Oh, such a long story! Sheets and sheets of story-foolscap sheets. She kept them in a long blue envelope and would not let me see them."

George reflected that evidently Mrs. Jersey had been writing out an account of her early life, and Margery's next words put the matter beyond a doubt. "My aunt said that she would let me have the story to read after she died. But I could not find it in the green box."

"Perhaps you did not look thoroughly," suggested George.

"Yes, I did, and I looked in all other places. But I could not find it. The story was Italian," went on Margery, staring at him, "for when my aunt wasn't looking I peeped. San Remo is in Italy, isn't it?"

"I believe so," replied George, more and more convinced that Mrs. Jersey had left a confession behind her. "Did you tell Miss Bull?"

Margery nodded. "She said I wasn't to say a word about it, but she will not be angry at my telling you. She likes you, and says you are like some one she once knew and loved."

Brendon did not pursue the conversation. He left the house promising to call again. With his head filled with many thoughts consequent on his two interviews, he emerged from Amelia square and walked down to Oxford street. A shout aroused him from his day dreams as he reached the corner. He saw a tall, red headed man crossing the road and a cab was bearing down on him. The man stood paralyzed in the center, and it was apparent that the horse would soon be on him. George, almost without thinking, dashed into the street and, seizing the animal, reined it back on its hindquarters with a powerful hand. There was a shout of admiration from the throng on the footpath, a few oaths from the driver of the hansom, and the next minute the red headed man was thanking his preserver on the pavement and shaking his hand violently.

"Don't you think I'll forget it, sir," he said, with rather an American accent. "You have saved Bawdsey, and Bawdsey can help you at a pinch."

Brendon was too bewildered by this extraordinary address to take it all in. Besides, the admiring crowd pressed around. Seeing this, Bawdsey took him by the arm and ran him round the corner into a quiet street. George recovered and looked at the man he had saved.

He was a tall man with a thin face, though his body was rather stout. His hair was red, his eyes were blue, and he had an alert manner about him which made Brendon wonder how such a sharp person ever came to place himself in the position of being run over.

But Bawdsey gave him no time to think. "What is your name?" he asked.

"George Brendon."

Bawdsey stepped back and a look of genuine surprise overspread his freckled face. And he was apparently more astonished than he showed, as Brendon guessed by the trembling of his hands. "I have lived over fifty years in the world," said Bawdsey, "and this is the queerest thing I ever dropped across. And I drop across many queer things, stranger!"

"Well, Mr. Bawdsey, if that is your name," said George good humoredly. "It is a good thing I have saved your life. But you seem as though you could."

"I can't," interrupted Bawdsey, antcipating the remark. "But have you ever heard of that disease—fear of open spaces?"

"No," replied Brendon. "What is it?"

"I don't give you the medical name," said Bawdsey. "You would not understand, but it is a dread to cross any open space. At times it takes me unexpectedly, and I get a sort of paralysis or the will and cannot move. That was why I stopped in the middle of the road. I should have been killed but for you."

"Perhaps I had better see you home, then," said Brendon.

"No, I shall take a cab. It is only now and then that the thing takes me. It can't be cured, and maybe it will get worse. At present it does not prevent me attending to my work. Come home with me, and I'll tell you more. I live in 43 Amelia square."

"Oh, yes, you do, but you won't trust me. However, I'll see you again, and I'll trust you. Take care of Lola Velez. She means you harm."

The next moment he was gone, and George was staring after him.

"It is all over," said George, "the last owner was Mr. Anthony Lockwood; he was"— George had it in his mind to state that Lockwood was his grandfather, but the time was not yet ripe for such a disclosure, and he said nothing at the moment. "He was a singing master," he finished rather lamely. "Mr. Ireland told me all about him."

"That is all correct, so far as I know," said Brendon. "I dare say you wish to know why I saw Mr. Ireland. I did so on behalf of Margery Watson, as I wanted the girl to continue the boarding house. I like the poor creature, and when her aunt died she was left very badly off."

"Didn't Mrs. Jersey leave any money?"

"No. She lived principally on an annuity from Lord Derrington."

"Ah," said Brendon, "his suspicions becoming more and more confirmed, so he allowed her an annuity." Why?"

"I can't tell you that. But with the death of Mrs. Jersey the annuity naturally ceased. I asked Mr. Ireland about the lease and then sought out Lord Derrington. I represented to him the position of Margery Watson, and he was good enough to renew the lease in her name on my security."

"Still by the year?" asked George.

"Still by the year. So now the poor girl can live."

"You are a good woman, Miss Bull," said George, "to help her in this way." It shows you have a good heart," said George.

"Well, Miss Bull"—he rose—"you have told me what I want to know. I hope to make use of it. In return for your confidence I should tell you—"

"Tell me nothing," cried the old maid quickly. "I don't wish to hear your secrets. The less said the sooner I'm mended. When Miss Ward becomes Mrs. Brendon," she added, with a dry smile, "you can send me a piece of wedding cake."

"She will not become Mrs. Brendon," said George, shaking his head. "I will be frank with you, Miss Bull. My name is not Brendon."

She rose from her seat and looked at him steadily, perusing every line in his face. "I thought I had seen some one like you before. I see now—now—don't tell me your name is—is—but it's impossible."

"My real name is George Vane. I am Lord Derrington's grandson."

The little woman looked at him wildly for a moment and then quietly slipped to the floor. She had fainted, and George rang the bell for assistance.

Margery, who had evidently been lurking outside, rushed in. When she saw her friend extended pale and lifeless on the carpet she turned on George with a furious look.

"What have you been doing to the poor darling?" she demanded. "You—"

"She raised her hand to strike, but Brendon caught her by the wrist.

"I have been doing nothing," he declared. "Miss Bull fainted unEXPECTEDLY."

It was one of the servants, but Margery waved her off. "No one but me—not one but me!" she cried and took the slender form of her friend up in her arms. "Wait here," she added to George. "I'll be down soon."

Brendon did not feel very comfortable. He saw that Margery was a kind of untamed animal who had been brought into subjection by Miss Bull.

No other person could manage her, and should she return still in passion Brendon feared lest she should use physical violence. Still he held his ground, as he was anxious to learn how

DREAD OF HUMANITY

I am compelled by a sense of gratitude to tell you the great good your remedy has done me in a case of Contagious Blood Poison. Among other symptoms I was severely afflicted with Rheumatism, and got almost past going. The disease got a firm hold upon my system; my blood was thoroughly poisoned with the virus. I lost in weight, was run down, had sore throat, eruptions, splotches and other evidences of the disease. I was truly in a bad shape, when I began the use of S. S. S., but the persistent use of it brought me out of my trouble safe and sound, and I have the courage to publicly testify to the virtues of your great blood remedy, S. S. S., and to recommend it to all blood-poison sufferers, sincerely believing if it is taken according to directions, and given a fair trial, it will thoroughly eliminate every particle of the virus. JAMES CURRAN, Stark Hotel, Greensburg, Pa.

Painful swellings in the groins, red eruptions upon the skin, sores in the mouth and loss of hair and eyebrows, are some of the symptoms of this vile disease. S. S. S. is an antidote for the awful virus that attacks and destroys even the bones, S. S. S. contains no Mercury, Potash or other mineral ingredient. We offer $1.00 for proof that it is not absolutely vegetable. Home treatment book giving the symptoms and other interesting and valuable information about this disease, mailed free. Our physicians advise free those who write us.

Sir, I hold to the opinion that all war is barbarous. I am against war, civilized or uncivilized except it be necessary to redeem people from oppression, or for the national defense, or to sustain the national honor in the protection of American citizenship.—Senator Fairbanks in the Senate, May 20, 1897.

NOTHING TO TAKE BACK

How Will Bryan Explain His Hostility to Parker?

William Jennings Bryan has been officially engaged by the Democratic national committee to make speeches in New York, Indiana and other places. The former candidate for the presidency has something of a reputation as an agile political contortionist, but he will have the time of his life explaining his record during the present campaign. Mr. Bryan has been on a good many sides of a good many different questions, and yet he lives to tell the tale. But just how he proposes to advocate the election of Parker is a mystery.

Bryan was opposed to Parker before the convention met at St. Louis. He was opposed to Parker every day during the sessions of that innumerable gathering. When Parker sent his telegram supplementing the Democratic platform Mr. Bryan rose from his bed of sickness to denounce the nominee as a traitor and a dilettante, and his drabittle appearance on that Saturday night was one of the most extraordinary episodes of an extraordinary convention. Bryan lashed Parker and he directed the convention to send a telegram to the nominee demanding his honest opinion on other well-known Democratic principles.

Later on Mr. Bryan, in his paper,

The Commoner, while the events of the convention were fresh before him, openly charged that Judge Parker was a party to a corrupt attempt to defeat the convention and that his nomination had been secured by improper means.

It was then that the former candidate for the presidency put himself on record by saying in The Commoner of July 13, less than a week after the nomination: "I have nothing to take back."

It seems a curious thing to find a man who has "nothing to take back" appearing on the stump favoring the election of Alton B. Parker for the presidency. If Mr. Bryan has "nothing to take back," he should be in complete honesty when he appears on the stump in Indiana and elsewhere, repeating to his audiences exactly what he said in The Commoner of July 13, which was printed exactly one week after the Democratic convention was called to order and only four days after Judge Parker was nominated for the presidency and had sent his telegram repudiating the Democratic platform.

In this issue of The Commoner Mr. Bryan said:

"It was a plain and deliberate attempt to deceive the party. The New York platform was vulgar and purposeless; so because the advocates of Judge Parker were trying to secure votes from among the people who would have opposed his views had they known them. The nomination had been secured, therefore, by crooked and indefensible methods."

Her success was immediate. She enacted her part with a reckless abandon and a wild frenzy which thrilled the house. For the moment Lola was not herself, but a wild Tibetan queen raving in the orgies of the wine god. All London came to see the frantic revels over which Lola presided, and night after night the little music hall was filled to overflowing. Lola made good use of her fame. She insisted that her salary should be raised, took modest lodgings in Bloomsbury and for a time saved her money as a provision against old age and poverty. On the stage she was a dancing demon, but at home no one could have been more modest. There was not a breath of scandal against her, in spite of Mrs. Ward's hint to Brendon.

He acted the part of a good Samaritan. Giving her a sovereign, he sent her away, regaled in a measure to her right mind. The next day he saw the proprietor of a music hall with whom he was acquainted and procured her his engagement.

Her success was immediate. She enacted her part with a reckless abandon and a wild frenzy which thrilled the house. For the moment Lola was not herself, but a wild Tibetan queen raving in the orgies of the wine god. All London came to see the frantic revels over which Lola presided, and night after night the little music hall was filled to overflowing. Lola made good use of her fame. The nomination had been secured, therefore, by crooked and indefensible methods."

As an exhibition of political gynastics Bryan's companion speech for Parker ought to be worth going miles to hear. If he says he has "nothing to take back," how will he explain matters to the people? What did he mean when he said in The Commoner:

"The nomination of Judge Parker virtually nullifies the anti-trust plank?"

Was it true on July 13 that

Parker's nomination had been secured

"by crooked means?"

If it was true then it is not true now!

Mr. Bryan in The Commoner said:

"I shall not appeal for votes for the ticket on false grounds."

How can he appear on the stump, therefore, and seriously ask the workingmen of the country to vote for the Democratic nominee after The Commoner had declared that "The labor plank as prepared by Judge Parker's friends on the subcommittee was a straddling, meaningless plank?"

It is evident that the party is under control of the Wall street element.

If the party was under the control of the Wall street element, when Mr. Bryan wrote that editorial, is it not just as much under the same control as he is on the stump?

Perhaps Mr. Bryan can explain away these things. Perhaps he can answer these questions.

Perhaps not.

A man who is weak enough to try to put his candidacy in their (Hill's and Belmont's) hands before the convention would not be strong enough to resist their influences after election, if he were by any possibility successful.—William J. Bryan.

WEATHER PROVES FAVORABLE

Russian Takes Advantage of Storms to Attempt to Pass Togo's Ships While Torpedo Destroyers Are Forced to Seek Shelter.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 7.—Russians are profoundly stirred by the latest reports from the scenes of war in the Orient, but whether they should prepare to rejoice or mourn is a question nobody can answer.

Something has happened to the Port Arthur fleet. It may be at the bottom of the sea. On the other hand, it may be sailing, intact and safe from Japanese pursuit, for Vladivostok. The only thing absolutely certain is that it has vanished so far as the St. Petersburg officials know, or the Japanese either, for the reports from Taku are significantly silent.

Mukden Reports Fresh Activity. Again there is commotion at Mukden. This may indicate Russian evacuation or Russian aggression. The officials are unable to say whether Kourapatkin is withdrawing from the Manchurian capital, or whether, reinforced, he is pushing south through the city in an offensive movement against the Japanese armies to the south, southeast and west.

News from Mukden is confined to a single press dispatch reporting a great battle in the city. Evidently the activity presages a big battle. Some experts are bold enough to take it that Gen. Kourapatkin is assuming the offensive, but in view of the fact that most reliable advisers credit him with only about six divisions at Mukden this is improbable. It is thought more likely that the commotion has to do with one or another of the Japanese flanking columns, which the Russian commander may be preparing to check.

Weather Aids Port Arthur Fleet. The admiralty claims to have no knowledge of the departure of the Port Arthur squadron, but it is inferable from the way in which the report that such an event had transpired was received that definite confirmation would not create surprise. No direct orders had been sent to Admiral Wiron to break through the blockading Japanese fleet, but it is tacitly admitted that the admiral had discretionary powers to leave Port Arthur should the situation demand it, or the conditions be propitious. In naval circles it is pointed out that Wednesday morning the conditions were favorable for a sortie. Heavy storms raged Tuesday and doubtless compelled the blockading vessels and particularly the torpedo boats, to seek shelter, thus leaving the way clear for a Russian dash to Vladivostok.

Some naval officers, however, are inclined to think the firing that was heard at Che-Foo may only have been directed at blockade runners. There is no confirmation of the report of a naval battle off Port Arthur.

Reports Checking Japs. Gen. Sakharov reports that all was quiet about Mukden Oct. 4, with the exception of the brush that day between a Cossack detachment and some Japanese dragoons near the Yental mines and a minor affair at Hunliou, where after being driven in by the Japanese the Russian outpost was reinforced and caused the Japanese to fall back after sharp fighting to the station at Tadeusampao. The Japanese sustained considerable losses.

The activity along the outposts is considered to confirm the general belief that the bulk of Gen. Kourapatkin's army is at Tie pass.

A special dispatch from Mukden says preparations for winter quarters are being made, adding that semi-subterranean huts are being constructed for the men stationed about the city. These are described as being warm and comfortable. The same report says the Japanese are suffering from privations, cold and hunger.

Baltic Fleet May Sail To-day.

Significant orders have been issued to keep time-expired members of all the guards regiments stationed in and around St. Petersburg with the colors till March, 1905.

Orders have been issued to all men belonging to the battleship Orel and the cruisers Oleg, Zemtchug and Izumrud to rejoin their vessels at Cronstadt immediately. It is believed that this presages the sailing of these vessels to-day for Rovia, where Emperor Nicholas is going to review the whole Baltic squadron.

LIES MOTIONLESS MANY YEARS

Second of "Ossified" Sisters Dies of Disease of Strange Nature.

Rome, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Erma Ewing Palmer, one of the "ossified" sisters, died Thursday at Sherburne, aged 50. Owing to a disease of a rheumatic nature which has baffled the skill of many prominent physicians throughout the country Mrs. Palmer had lain motionless upon her back, totally blind and with every muscle rigid, for the last twenty-seven years. The disease manifested itself within a few days after her marriage at the age of 23. Her sister, Miss Stella Ewing, who died here two years ago, was afflicted in the same way.

MURDER SUSPECT IS CAPTURED

Supposed Slayer of Wisconsin Sheriff Sent to Hospital for Insane.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 7.—John Smith, supposed to be the man who killed Sheriff H. A. Harris of St. Croix county, Wisconsin, three months ago, and wanted in Montana for murder, has been captured and is confined temporarily in the hospital for the insane at Mendota, Wis. He is a physical wreck from exposure.

Rear Admiral Wise, commander in chief of the Atlantic training squadron, has recommended that the squadron spend the greater part of the winter in Pensacola harbor and vicinity.
